History

The Serengeti Galaxy, home to millions of animal citizens, has always had its ups and downs. Lacking a strong central government, the planets either govern themselves or rely on the protection offered by several 'special' organizations that often vie for power. These clashes sometimes result in civilian casualties, but for the most part the organizations stick to assassination and sabotage to gain the upperhand – er... paw.

The secret organization of Khonuum – some say the most just and fair of the secret organizations – watches over the planet of Tanza. Upon learning that the crocodile dictator of Nile planned an all-out attack on Tanza in his efforts to conquer the whole galaxy, Khonuum put their best employee – a jackalope named Harry- on their highest priority missions, aimed to slowly dismantle the croc's power.

Harry, a selfish hedonist at heart, cares too much about his own skin sometimes, but with his home-planet in jeopardy, is he willing to cast aside his fears and make a sacrifice for the citizens of Tanza?

Inhabitants

Tanza is mostly inhabited by herbivores and omnivores, such as giraffe, wildebeest, hippos, and monkeys. The city is home to many rich animals that live in the high-rises and spend their days at clubs and casinos, while the majority of the population lives less glamorous lives on the ground level. It is far from utopian, but for a skilled assassin like Harry, it's the perfect place to call home.
